III. Definitions – Glossary of Terms and Acronyms
The following definitions as well as any definitions in Addendum 1 to the ACFS Operating Policies and Procedures (“Non-Disclosure Principles Pertaining to Restricted Materials Generated in the ACFS”) shall apply to the ACFS Charter and Bylaws, Operating Policies and Procedures, and ACFS materials generally.

A. ACF Basin Stakeholder Boundary (see Appendix A) - The stakeholder boundaries of the ACF River System, as defined for the purposes of the ACFS, is the drainage basin comprised of the Apalachicola, Chattahoochee, and Flint River Basins and Apalachicola Bay watershed. This area includes all tributaries, estuaries, streams (wet or dry), lakes, reservoirs, locks and impoundments bounded by the high ridge lines that define the flow of all waters into Apalachicola Bay. The origins of the water begin in the southern Appalachian Mountains and the adjacent Piedmont and flow to the southern extent of the basin boundary within Florida including the Flint, Chattahoochee, Chipola, Apalachicola, and New Rivers and their major receiving water body, Apalachicola Bay. The southern boundary is considered the mean high water line along the south shore of the barrier islands (St. Vincent, St. George, and Dog islands) and Alligator Point that form the Apalachicola estuary.

B. Administrative issue: Of, or related, to the management and operation of the ACFS.

C. Stakeholder: A Stakeholder is any person, party or entity which has an interest in, utilizes, or has an expressed concern in the surface and/or subsurface waters of the ACF Basin Stakeholder Boundary as defined in this document.
